PRICE TWO CENTS

BOY HUNTER, 19, IS SHOT TO DEATH

Carl Spangler, Boiling Springs, Accidentally Killed by Lawrence Murtoff, 16.

BOTH ARE ON STANDS

Buck Runs Between Them and Murtoff, of Menallen Township, Fired. The Shot Striking His Companion.

Carl Spangler, 19, of Boiling Springs, was accidentally shot and instantly killed by a fellow-hunter, Lawrence Murtoff, 16, of Menallen township, at 3:30 Monday afternoon, in Dickinson township, Cumberland county, just across the Adams-Cumberland line, and near the Mt. Tabor church.

The fatality, the first in the present deer hunting season in the state and the first in the South Mountains in recent years, occurred while the youths were on stands 100 yards apart.

As they waited for deer to be driven toward them by other members of the hunting party, a buck ran between Spangler and Murtoff. The latter raised his double barreled shot gun, took aim on the fleeing deer and fired.

Shot Goes Through Head
Murtoff's shot missed the deer and struck Spangler in the forehead, killing him instantly. Murtoff was using a sponge ball in the shot gun and a gaping hole was made in Spangler's forehead.

Dr. C. G. Crist, Chambersburg street, Adams county's coroner, was summoned, but, when he arrived on the scene, it was learned that Cumberland county had jurisdiction. Dr. Crist, however, made an investigation of the circumstances surrounding the shooting, and later called Dr. Charles Pepper, of Newville, coroner for Cumberland county. Death by accidental shooting was the verdict given by the coroner.

The dead boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Spangler and was a member of the senior class of the Boiling Springs High School.

Parents Warned Him
It was said that his parents forbade him going hunting on Monday and that he slipped away from the house with his gun, and in company with Harry Murtoff, an uncle of the boy who did the shooting, went into the South Mountains for deer.

On their way to the deer haunts, Spangler and Harry Murtoff took with them Lawrence Murtoff. The latter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Murtoff, Menallen township. They arrived in the mountains about 11:30 o'clock, it is reported, and there met other hunters. A hunting party was formed and the two boys were placed on stands while older members of the group began a drive toward the sentinels.

Both Face Deer
Both boys saw the deer at that Murtoff shot, it is believed, but that (Continued on Third Page)

Football Leaders Lauded; Emanuel Again Is Captain; New Stadium Is Planned

Gettysburg College Won Eight of Ten Games This Season; Annual Banquet is Held, With Many Toasts Given.

Unstinted praise to Coach W. W. Wood and the entire football squad for their splendid showing in the season which closed last Thursday was given by speakers at the annual banquet of the Gettysburg College football squad at the Eagle Hotel Monday evening.

One of the speakers declared the team's showing this year of winning eight consecutive games was a record never before approached by any grid-iron team at Gettysburg College. State and Lehigh were the only colleges to defeat Gettysburg this year.

The most important item of business transacted by the football men after each one of the sixty persons present had done ample justice to a turkey dinner was the reelection of Edward "Snaps" Emanuel as captain for next year. In remarks during the evening, the flashy fullback, who this year was moved from a position on the end to the backfield where his work both on the defense and offense stood out prominently, pointed to the excellent prospects for a team next year which he said would compare favorably, if not excel, the one which wore the Orange and Blue this season.

Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of the local institution, acted as toastmaster, and called for remarks from a number of the men present. Among those who responded were George Hummel, York; John Weimer, York; P. B. S. Rice, Harrisburg; Doyle R. Leathers, Gettysburg; Henry Bream, Gettysburg, assistant coach, and Dr. Richard Arms, who during the past season acted as chief scout for the College team, and Coach Wood.

The latter, in an address, declared that he did not want to take any credit upon himself for the showing of the team. Rather, he said, the splendid morale of the team and the spirit of the student body were responsible for the victories which came to Gettysburg. He had high praise not only for the varsity, but for the scrubs as well.

During the evening, the announcement was made that a three-year contract had been given to Coach Wood. It was said that while he had not yet placed his signature on "the dotted line" it was confidently expected that he would sign up as mentor for another term. As Dr. Hanson said, "We want you not only for three years, but for thirty-three years."

David M. Gilbert, of Camp Hill, was elected manager of the team for next year, it was announced, succeeding Leon Phillips who acted in that capacity this year. His assistants were announced as follows: Walker, Bauder, Sipe and Asbury.

George "Happy" Mordan, president of the student body, and sturdy half-back on the football team, announced the following as recipients of the coveted G for participating in the required number of games during the past season:

Singley, Decker, Yost, Doran, Jones, Beecham, Weiser, Pilus, Slaughter, Emanuel, Stauffer, Mordan, B. Mensch, Ebert, Kropchock, Stevens, P. Mensch, Fauber and Manager Phillips. Gold football emblems will be given to the Seniors in addition to their varsity letters.

Seven games have been scheduled for next year, it was said at the banquet. They are Juniata, Lehigh, State, Muhlenberg, Mt. St. Marys, Dickinson and Franklin and Marshall. Efforts were made to have Johns Hopkins, Carnegie Tech, Swarthmore or Columbia accept berths on the 1924 schedule without success.

ADAMS COUNTY MAN ARRESTED IN YORK

A. M. Malaun, of Hampton, Found Staggering in Street Drunk. It Is Charged.

Found rolling about on the sidewalk in York in an highly intoxicated state, A. M. Malaun, of Hampton, Adams county, was placed under arrest Monday night by Motorcycle Officer Axe, of West York borough. The arrest was made on West Market street.

Several minutes before he was placed under arrest, Malaun was staggering about in the street and several times was nearly run down by passing motorists. Charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct have been lodged against the man. He is being held at York police station for Officer Axe.

Initial Steps Toward Providing New Athletic Field Taken at Meeting of Alumni; Addressed by President Hanson.

Initial steps toward providing a new athletic field and stadium for Gettysburg College were taken at a meeting of prominent alumni interested in the development of athletics at the local institution, at the College Y. M. C. A. on Monday afternoon.

Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of the College, who declares he has a vision of "a greater Gettysburg College," acted as chairman of the meeting and called for a round table discussion of its purposes. He declared that Nixon Field, the present athletic grounds of the College, was inadequate and that Gettysburg has the poorest athletic field in its class. George Hummel, of York, member of the Alumni Athletic Committee, struck a responsive note when he declared that the new athletic grounds should be termed Memorial Field, in honor of the Gettysburg men who answered the call during the World War and served their country. He said that as yet the College has done nothing in honor of its ex-service men and that a memorial athletic field would be a most appropriate tribute.

Mr. Hummel declared that it was his idea to have the names of all the men who served the country, from College, inscribed on a plate prominently located on the proposed Memorial Field.

As a means of financing the building of the new athletic field, Mr. Hummel proposed the collection of $10 from each of the 1,800 living alumni of the College. While this sum might not be entirely sufficient to carry out the plans, he said it would approximate the total cost.

In the round table discussion, it was pointed out that the present athletic field was inadequate. However, it was the consensus of opinion among those present at the meeting that Nixon Field should be retained for use as a hockey, lacrosse or soccer field. It was pointed out that the swamp in the northern part of the present field could be filled in and tennis courts laid out on it, in connection with its use for other athletic sports.

Coach W. W. Wood, who was present, declared that the present field was too small to have three and four football teams practicing upon it at once and consequently those students who do not indulge in football found no other athletic sport at Gettysburg College to occupy their time and talents during the fall. He said that with two athletic fields, one could be used for football while the other could be utilized for minor outdoor sports.

The new athletic field would be west of the Nixon Field. Modeled after the Muhlenberg athletic ground, the proposed field would have a stadium with a seating capacity of 4,000. This stadium, whether to be built of concrete or timber, brought forth considerable discussion around the board. No definite construction was agreed upon, except that, whatever stands are built, they should be constructed with the idea of permanency. The need of a fence around the (Continued on Second Page.)

George W. Hummer Is Dead; Felled By Tree Blown Down

George Washington Hummer, of Biglerville R. 2, who was brought to the Warner Hospital last Friday with injuries received when a tree fell upon him, died at the institution at 4:45 o'clock, Monday afternoon. He was aged 67 years, 6 months and 17 days.

Mr. Hummer was engaged in cutting down trees on the farm of George Schlissler, a neighbor, when the accident occurred. He had cut three trees almost through. A strong wind began blowing and one of these trees was blown over.

While Hummer was engaged in trimming the fallen tree, the wind blew over a second tree. In falling, this tree caught the woodcutter and pinned him to the ground.

An examination at the hospital revealed that his left leg was broken between the knee and the hip, his spinal column was injured by the weight of the tree upon it and that he

MORRISON FILES TEST OF ABSENT VOTERS LAW HERE

Defeated Candidate For Sheriff of Adams County Starts Proceedings in Court; Votes of Absentee Citizens Caused His Defeat by Shealer; Petition Bears 45 Signatures; Sheriff-Elect's Status in Doubt Among Officials.

A test of the legality of the act of the State legislature of May 22, 1923, commonly known as the absent voters law, will be made in court here as a result of the filing late Monday of a petition asking that the absentee votes cast in the recent general election be thrown out and that G. D. Morrison, Democrat, be declared elected sheriff of Adams county by reason of his majority, exclusive of the ballots in question.

According to the official count of all the ballots cast in the recent general election as certified to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, John Shealer, the Republican candidate, of Franklin township, was elected sheriff of the county by a majority of fifteen votes.

It was learned some time after the election that Morrison was considering a contest in certain districts of the county. However, instead of contesting the election in any particular voting precinct, the present petition contests the validity of the absent voters' law.

Petition Has 45 Signers
The petition, which bears the names of 45 qualified voters of the county, declares that the votes cast in the general election, exclusive of the absentee votes, as appearing in the official count were Morrison, 4889; Shealer, 4856, thereby electing Morrison by a majority of 33.

The petition further avers that in the official count of the absentee votes Shealer was given 63 and his Democratic opponent 15, making the final official totals for both men: Morrison, 4904; Shealer, 4919, or a majority of fifteen votes. This majority elected Shealer.

Hearing Set for January 7
The petition then alleges that the (Continued on Second Page.)

Court Cites Sheriff and Father For Using the County Prisoners

Hartmans Are Summoned to Show Cause Why They Should Not be Held in Contempt of Court For Taking Prisoners Out of Jail to Work on Their Personal Property; Coroner Crist Ordered to Serve Rule.

Dr. C. G. Crist, Chambersburg street, Adams county's coroner, this morning, was called upon by Clerk of the Courts J. Robert Hartman to serve a rule on Sheriff John W. Hartman and his father and deputy, H. J. Hartman, to show cause why they should not be considered in contempt of court.

Information received by Dr. Crist at the county jail was to the effect that Sheriff Hartman was out of town and would not be back before tonight and that Deputy Sheriff Hartman would not be in before noon. Consequently neither official could be served with the rule before midday.

The rule was handed down by President Judge D. P. McPherson in court Monday afternoon. The slip of paper created as much stir among the court house officials as would a bomb suddenly cast in their midst.

The court's rule states that it is "common knowledge" that, at various times during the year 1923, Sheriff Hartman and his father and deputy, Howard Hartman, removed prisoners from the county jail to work on properties owned by them for their profit.

Prisoners Are Named
The name of the prisoners given in the rule are Daniel Starner, Harvey McCleaf, Jack Wilson, Edward Brown, Otto Brown. The rule stated further that there were others unknown to the court who were taken from the county jail by the sheriff and his deputy.

One the eve of quitting the county jail as custodians of the prisoners sent there, both Sheriff Hartman and his father made extensive improvements to properties they own on Hanover street during the year, it is said. That the prisoners taken from the jail were employed at these places is implied in the court's rule.

Not quite a year ago, in fact on December 7, 1922, Sheriff Hartman and his father were each fined $250 and costs after they had been convicted by a jury of neglect in connection with the escape of prisoners. At the time of passing sentence, Judge McPherson warned them not to allow prisoners outside the jail yard, as, it was alleged, they had done on several occasions. Judge McPherson told them when he passed sentence that, if they persisted in the practice, they would be amenable to the law and would be adjudged in contempt of court.

The present status of affairs is said to be the outgrowth of considerable investigation on the part of the court. Charges against the sheriff and his father previously had been brought after the county auditors, in auditing the books of the sheriff, found that the county had been charged with boarding John Penn, an aged colored man, when, it is alleged, he was not in the jail, but had escaped. Trial of the charge of allowing prisoners to escape was before the local court at the April term in 1922 and a jury returned a verdict of guilty.

Sentence was not imposed pending a new trial. After considerable legal proceedings the convicted men were taken before Judge McPherson on December 7 for sentence. The rule was made returnable on Thursday, December 13, and Saturday, December 15, at 10 o'clock was set as the date for a hearing on the rule.

The court's rule concludes by directing that Dr. C. G. Crist, county coroner, serve the necessary papers on the sheriff and his deputy. In all cases involving actions against a county's sheriff, the county coroner serves all papers and would act in the capacity of sheriff should a vacancy occur at any time.

POST REELECTS WEAVER AS HEAD

Mrs. William G. Weaver Chosen to Head Woman's Auxiliary by Coincidence.

William G. Weaver, Broadway, junior member of the dry goods firm of G. W. Weaver and Son, Center Square, was unanimously reelected commander of the Albert J. Lentz post, No. 202, American Legion, at the annual election of officers on Monday evening.

Other officers elected to guide the destinies of the local ex-service men's organization through the year 1924 were: Robert Hand, first vice commander; Howard Shaeffer, second vice commander; Lawrence Oyler, adjutant; John Hewitt, finance officer; Frank Stokes, sergeant-at-arms, and Harold Mumper, historian and chaplain.

By a coincidence, both the wives of the post commander and post adjutant were elected to fill positions similar to those to which their husbands were elected, in the Woman's Auxiliary which also held its annual election of officers on Monday evening. Mrs. William G. Weaver was elected president of the Auxiliary, while Mrs. Lawrence Oyler was chosen secretary.

In addition, the following officers were elected by the Auxiliary: Mrs. C. M. Wolf, first vice president; Mrs. Edwin Ross, corresponding secretary; Miss Merle Stauffer, treasurer, and directors, Mrs. Howard Spangler, Mrs. Harry Lackner, Mrs. Edward Moser, Mrs. R. C. Miller, Mrs. Frank Deardoff and Mrs. Reuben Lupp.

The post authorized a play committee to select a farce comedy for presentation during the winter. The committee was given authority to select the play to be produced. Lawrence Oyler, Frank Stokes, Robert Hand, Clyde Bream and William Timmins comprise the committee. Several plays are under consideration.

To the absent member of the family, a year's subscription to The Gettysburg Times would be a most welcome gift. adv. 1.

CLUB ADVISED TO GET THINGS DONE

Accomplishments Best Inspire Friendly Feeling on Part of Public, Speaker Declares.

The relation between local Rotary clubs and the community was the subject of a talk before the Gettysburg Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon in the Hoffman Hotel Monday evening by G. M. Steinmetz, editor of The Harrisburg Telegraph.

Get things accomplished for the public welfare and the impression registered upon the sub-conscious minds of the people as a result of those accomplishments will of itself create a friendly and confident feeling on the part of the people as a whole toward the club, was the gist of Mr. Steinmetz's talk.

He said that propaganda is all right in its place and helps to create a proper atmosphere, but that in the final analysis it is facts, and facts only, that leave the favorable and lasting impression.

"You can't expect your newspaper member to continually tell the people what a fine organization of business and professional men you are and expect the people to doff their hats to you every time you walk down street. Do things in the true Rotary spirit of service and unselfishness and you are bound to win confidence and support of the community," he said.

To Entertain Football Team

Mr. Steinmetz is a prominent member of the Harrisburg Rotary club and is a former member of the public relations committee of Rotary International. He is chairman of the publicity committee of the Harrisburg club. He complimented Gettysburg on the "remarkable attendance record" of 34 one hundred per cent attendance meetings in recent months. The meeting Monday evening was another with perfect attendance on the part of the members. There were a number of guests also.

The publicity committee comprising C. W. Cook, chairman, Arthur E. Jones and Fred Greist had charge of the meeting. It was announced by the president, Samuel G. Spangler, that at the meeting next Monday evening the members of the football team of Gettysburg High School will be the guests of honor.

INSURGENTS HOLD HOUSE IN CLINCH

Gillette And Garrett Each Receive 197 Votes on Fifth Ballot.

NO CHANGE ON SIXTH

Senate Holds Brief Session But no Attempt is Made to Transact Business; Busy With Assignments.

(By Associated Press)
Washington, Dec. 4.—Another hot battle for speaker in the House today failed to break the deadlock, no candidate receiving the majority necessary for election.

On the fifth ballot, Gillette and Garrett each received 197 votes. Cooper received 17 and Madden 5.

No change was announced after the sixth ballot was taken.

The insurgent bloc in the House which has tied the hands of the new Congress by refusing to support Speaker Gillette for reelection carried forward today its campaign of opposition.

There were many rumors of compromise, but the insurgent leaders made all inquiries with a declaration that they were as far as ever from surrendering.

Meantime the Senate, whose leaders maintain it can only meet and adjourn until the House has perfected its organization, held a brief session at which there was no attempt to transact business. Adjournment was taken immediately after the opening prayer and without even a roll call to develop whether a quorum was present.

Senate leaders on both the majority and minority sides, however, were busy with assignments of Senators to standing committees and with preparations for the fight for Senate reorganization which is to come after President Coolidge has delivered his first message to Congress. Whether the President can carry his plan of appearing at a joint session tomorrow also is contingent on a break in the deadlock in the House.

IGNORED WARNING AND IS SHOT DEAD

Black Hand Carries Out Threat Against Brooklyn Man; Family Chloroformed.

(By Associated Press.)
New York, Dec. 4.—Dominic Maggio, who laughed three weeks ago when he received a letter signed with a black hand and demanding money or his life, was shot dead early today in his Brooklyn home after his wife, three children and himself had been chloroformed. Gas masks, the empty chloroform bottle, the murder guns and two empty cartridges were left by the slayers beside their victim's bed.

Maggio was shot twice. His wife, only semi-conscious from the fumes of the drug, heard the shots and made a feeble attempt to aid him, but she was knocked down by a blow on the head. With the children she was taken to a hospital.

CRIME WAVE AT NEW HIGH LEVEL

Four Safe Robberies and At- tempt at Lynching in One Day in Gotham.

New York, Dec. 4.—New York's crime wave Monday assumed more menacing proportions, soon after the police announced that criminal activities had subsided to such an extent that there was no longer need of extraordinary precautions.

Monday's activities included four safe robberies, an attempted lynching, a daylight hold-up, a street shooting, the suicide of an aged man weary of life, the frustrated suicide of an elderly man who had lost all his money in bad investments, the arrest of three gangsters charged with the theft of $10,000 worth of whisky and the seizure of 8000 cases of Canadian beer, consigned to a Broadway hotel.

Two of four safe robberies were particularly daring. One of the city's busiest spots, the Pennsylvania Railroad Terminal, thronged throughout the day and night, was the scene of one. Thieves ripped off a safe door in the offices of the Union News Company and made off with $3300.

PASTOR CHARGES G. O. P. FRAME-UP

Methodist Committee Who Asked Politicians Aid For Half Fare Criticized.

Philadelphia, Dec. 4.—The action of a committee of Methodist preachers in appealing to the Republican organization for assistance in putting through a constitutional amendment giving half fare to the clergy when they travel on railroads was criticized by the Rev. Dr. John Watchorn, pastor of Oak Lane Methodist Episcopal Church, Monday at the meeting of the Philadelphia-New Jersey Methodist Preachers' Association in Simpson Hall, Seventeenth and Arch streets.

"If the railroads and the people of Pennsylvania want to give us such privileges voluntarily, all right," declared Doctor Watchorn. "But the clergy is placed in an embarrassing position when it is openly stated that we campaigned for such a gratuity."

G. O. P. Workers Turned In
"I have been given to understand that when it looked as though the amendment would be defeated the Republican committee was appealed to, and word went out from Eleventh and Chestnut streets to Republican workers to save the amendment."

"It does not reflect credit upon the clergy to have the world know that we obtained this gratuity as a result of the efforts of machine politicians."

The 50 per cent reduction in railroad fare is valued by clergymen of all denominations, because it means a saving of from $100 to $200 a year to the average clergyman. To those who travel considerably it means much more.

Having been passed by two legislatures, the constitutional amendment was voted on by the people of Pennsylvania at the November election. Prior to the election word was received that the amendment would be defeated unless some special efforts were made to stimulate the interest of voters.

act of May 22, 1923, is unconstitutional and that absent voters ballots should be thrown out and Morrison declared elected sheriff. Ten reasons are cited by the petitioners in support of their claim that the recent act of the legislature is unconstitutional.

In the court's order, the rule issuing on Shealer was made returnable January 7, which was also fixed as the date of the hearing on the rule.

Shealer's Status in Doubt
Court house officials this morning were at loss to know whether Shealer will be allowed to take the oath of office at the beginning of the year when the newly-elected county officers are sworn in. It was said, however, by a legal authority that Shealer will be allowed to assume his duties as sheriff, pending the outcome of the present action.

It is said that a test of the validity of the absent voters' law is also being made in Lancaster county. Should the law be declared unconstitutional and the absent voters' ballots be disregarded in Adams county, no other contest in the recent general election would be affected, it is pointed out.

NAVY WILL MAKE NORTH POLE TRIP

Board of Officers Will Work Out Details of Plan, it is Announced.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Definite decision to undertake a naval expedition to the north pole, to be undertaken probably next summer by aircraft, was announced Monday by Secretary Denby.

A board of officers to study the problems of the expedition was ordered convened immediately at the navy department.

Secretary Denby said it had not been decided whether the giant rigid dirigible Shenandoah would be used or whether heavier-than-air craft would be selected, or both, nor had the route and date of departure been determined.

A letter to Secretary Denby written by President Coolidge and expressing the chief executive's approval of the polar project was made public in connection with Secretary Denby's announcement.

CRAIG ESCAPES JAIL SENTENCE

President Remits Imprisonment —Daugherty Assails Comptroller.

HE COURTED MARTYRDOM

Contempt on One Lip, Falsehood on Other, Says Attorney-General; Case is Without Precedent.

Washington, Dec. 4.—President Coolidge late yesterday remitted the 60-day sentence passed upon Comptroller Charles L. Craig for contempt of court by Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer, but refused the New Yorker a pardon.

At the same time Attorney-General Daugherty, upon whose recommendation the President acted, issued a statement exonerating the Comptroller, declaring that Mr. Craig "had contempt on one lip and falsehood on the other." He added that the New York official clearly courted martyrdom and would be more disappointed in being released from jail sentence than in serving time.

Judge Mayer's Statement
The Department of Justice, in giving out its recommendation to the President, made public a letter received from Judge Mayer himself in which the jurist declared that "the defendant was not accused of or tried for personal criticism of the court and that no question of free speech was involved." On the contrary, the judge says, Craig was clearly guilty of "impeding the court in the due administration of justice."

The only ground given for the decision of the President in the Craig case was the public interest involved. It was feared, the Attorney-General pointed out, that the imprisonment of the Comptroller, as Senator Copeland asserted, would result in serious financial difficulties for the municipality of New York.

The remarkable phase of the action of the President, it is said here last night, is the fact that the Comptroller is saved from going to jail, on the one hand, and is scathingly denounced guilty of "wantonly attacking a United States court," on the other. There is not a line in the record as made public last night which excuses or justifies or extenuates the original charges made against Craig.

Case Without Precedent
There is no precedent, it is added, in the annals of the Department of Justice for this procedure. There is no other case where clemency is extended, it is said, and the man receiving it is assailed so bitterly and his guilt pronounced in such terms.

The decision to remit the sentence and to withhold a pardon was reached early Monday. The papers were signed by the President Monday afternoon and sent to the Department of Justice, where the first announcement of the action taken was made. An hour later the White House by verbal announcement through Secretary Slomp added only that the President had concluded that remission of the time to be served was the most that could be done for Craig.

After citing the fact "that the vast financial affairs of New York city for the time being have to a large extent been entrusted to Craig's keeping," affairs which might, through the Comptroller's imprisonment, "suffer serious consequences," the Attorney-General expressed the view that there "must of necessity be a spirit of comity in our dual form of government."

ON JOB 50 YEARS WITHOUT MISHAP

Pennsy Railroad Engineer is Re- tired and Children Will Miss Him.

Baltimore, Dec. 4.—Fifty years, eight months and ten days is a long time for a man to stick to one job, in the opinion of most people, but to William H. Shauck, Pennsylvania Railroad engineer, retired last Friday, it is all too short.

Narrow escapes were not unknown in those years, he said Monday, but he never was involved in an accident, although one of his firemen was killed when he leaned too far from the cab and was struck by the roof of the express office at Calvert station.

For thirty-nine years Mr. Shauck has been shifting passenger trains at Calvert station. His face begrimmed and smiling, framed in the cab window, was a familiar sight to all the workers at the station.

Children on their way to and from school will miss him, for always he had a wave for them as his locomotive passed.

WHITE HOUSE IS UNSAFE, REPORT

$400,000 is Asked For to Avert "Possible Calamity" at President's Mansion.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The White House has been declared unsafe. Conditions there are such as to require that immediate remedial measures be taken to prevent a prospective calamity.

Those disclosures were made Monday by Major General Lansing II. Beach, chief of engineers of the army, in his annual report to the secretary of war. Congress is asked for $400,000 for reconstruction of the interior of the famous building to make it secure.

"A preliminary study of the situation in the interior upper portion of the executive mansion has indicated a condition which renders the building unsafe, both from the standpoint of security in the structural features and the fire hazard present," said Major General Beach. The conditions "are such as to require that immediate remedial measures be taken to prevent a possible calamity."

"These conditions have been called to the attention of the president, and his authority for the inclusion of the item submitted herewith ($400,000) has been requested. While such approval has not yet been secured, the item is tentatively included herein."

proposed field, so that the practice of "beating one's way" into the games played here would be abolished, was also stressed. It was pointed out that a field where admissions could be collected from all spectators would be a source of revenue which would bring the athletic committee more funds with which to schedule bigger games here. With good roads coming into Gettysburg from all directions, it was declared that there should be no trouble having large crowds here for football games, if the games were such that spectators did not know before the contest how the score would be at the end.

A committee, consisting of George Hummel, of York, chairman, and Harry Stahler, of Norris-town, and P. B. S. Rice, of Harrisburg, members, was appointed by the chairman of the meeting, to present the proposition of a new athletic field for the College to the Board of Trustees at their annual December meeting to be held in Harrisburg next Tuesday. Among other things, this committee will ask the Board's permission for the use of the ground west of the present athletic field for the proposed stadium.

It was the opinion of those present at the meeting that the Board would not withhold permission to use the ground west of Nixon Field for a new stadium. When the permission has been granted, the committee which met Monday will be convened again to lay definite plans for the size of the proposed stadium and ways and means of financing it. By that time, architect's plans of how the stadium would fit in the general layout of the College grounds are also expected to be on hand.

Alumni present at the meeting were Frank Moser, George Hummel and J. B. Weimer, of York; Dr. C. H. Huber, Doyle R. Leathers, Charles H. Smith and Dr. H. Milton Valentine, of Gettysburg; Harry Stahler, of Norris-town, and Dr. John Meisenholder, of Hanover. Coach W. W. Wood, George "Happy" Mordan, president of the student body; Captain Edward "Snaps" Emanuel and Arthur S. Johnson, secretary of the College Y. M. C. A., were also present.

Another $100,000 suit filed by Miss Lygo against Mrs. Catherine Thorn Camp, Thorn's mother, who is alleged to have called the girl "a vampire," is expected to follow settlement of the heart balm suit.

BUTLER TO HEAD PHILA. POLICE

Officer of Marine Corps Accepts Quaker City "Clean-Up" Task.

TO HAVE FULL POWER

Old Guard Politicians Are Shocked and Rebellion in Ranks is Threatened by "Small Fry."

Philadelphia, Dec. 4.—Brigadier-General Smedley Butler, known in the Marine Corps as "the fighting Quaker," will be Director of Public Safety in the administration of Mayor-elect Kendrick.

Word was received from Washington Monday that the idol of the "Leathernecks" had accepted the invitation from the incoming executive on terms that insure a thorough clean-up of the police department and a routing of the evil forces that have corrupted the safety department.

"Old Guard" Stunned
Selection of General Butler as safety director fell like a bombshell in the ranks of the "Old Guard" politicians, who had held to the hope until the last that the new Mayor would name a practical politician to the post. Already talk of reprisals by ward leaders who deal with the gambling element is heard among the small-fry politicians.

After four years of lean pickings the political forces aligned with vice and bootlegging were deceiving themselves with the belief that the combine would throw the town wide open. Threats were also heard that Mayor-elect Kendrick would face a spit Council at the beginning of his administration. These threats were viewed lightly by those in the inner council, who declared a united organization will stand behind the incoming executive in his desire to give a business-like administration and clean up vice and bootlegging.

Butler Gets Broad Powers
In accepting the portfolio in Mr. Kendrick's Cabinet, General Butler laid down conditions of acceptance virtually as follows:

First—That he should have power to hire and discharge policemen.

Second—That the salaries of the policemen should be increased and the force increased to 10,500.

Third—That he should be supreme in the enforcement of the law, without interference from the Mayor.

Fourth—That he should have a furlough from the marine service with his title undisturbed.

To Resign If Hampered
Fifth—That if the Mayor revoked any order issued by the Director of Public Safety or interfered in the enforcement of the law he would immediately resign and return to the marines.

All these conditions have been agreed to by Mayor-elect Kendrick, who will make them public in detail when General Butler's leave of absence is officially granted by President Coolidge.

Elements in the Republican organization who favor a clean-cut business Administration say that General Butler's appointment is the best show of independence the Mayor-elect could possibly make.

To Go After Rum Ring
In bringing about the acceptance of General Butler, Mayor-elect Kendrick first approached Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and implored him to persuade the marine commander to consider the offer seriously. Mellon is said to have agreed on the ground that a clean-up of liquor law violations in Philadelphia would accrue to the advantage of the Republican party nationally.

President Coolidge, after a talk with Secretary Mellon, agreed that General Butler should go to Philadelphia and try his hand at cleaning up the law violations.

A Serious Loss

By REV. JOHN C. PAGE
Teacher of Bible Doctrine, Moody
Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—If the salt have lost its savour, . . . it is thenceforth good for nothing.—Matt. 5:13.

The Christian life is distinct from every other kind of life. It comes down from above. It is from Heaven, not of men. It is God's gift, and bestowed through the channel of faith in Christ. In human experience, it may come as the soft and gentle blowing of the evening breeze, or it may resemble a great and strong wind like that which rends the mountains and breaks the rock in pieces. The Holy Spirit is not limited to any mode of operation. As the wind bloweth where it listeth, so is everyone that is born of the Spirit. The essential thing to remember is that which Peter states in his second Epistle, chapter 1, verse 4: "Ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust." Human nature, as it has come to us from our first parents, is fallen and corrupt. From the power of this nature the child of God is delivered by being made a recipient of a new nature, a divine life imparted to the soul. The words of John 1:12-13 make this unmistakably clear—"To as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name: which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God."

The elements entering into this life and giving it distinction of character from all other life, may be found in what is known as the Beatitudes contained in the Sermon on the Mount. In these Beatitudes (Matt. 5:1-12) our Lord gives a picture of the person who should be the product of His redemptive work. Such an one would be "poor in spirit"; that is, he would have a real sense of his own insufficiency and of his need of dependence on God. He would "mourn" over the disordered condition of the world through sin. He would be "meek," rather than self-assertive. A "hunger and thirst after righteousness" would characterize him. He would be "merciful" towards others. He would be "pure of heart," that is, his heart would be dominated by singleness and sincerity of purpose in its attitude towards God. He would be a "peacemaker," promoting peace and avoiding all that causes friction and discord in the varied relationships of life. Moreover, he would be patient and firm in any persecution that may arise because of the principles governing his life. In this picture we have the outstanding features of the new life, or the qualities that enter into it. To all who possess this life there comes the message of the text: "Ye are the salt of the earth." The purpose of salt is to preserve from decay and corruption. Only through the influence and power of such a life as pictured in these Beatitudes is the world preserved from moral and spiritual deterioration and decay.

It is of supreme importance that the qualities of life which make the possessors thereof "the salt of the earth" be preserved. The loss of any one of them is serious, for the savor of the salt is diminished in proportion to that loss. If the salt loses its savor, of what use is it? Let the Master Himself answer: "It is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men." Such loss may be considered as personal, universal and permanent.

It is personal in that the Christian loses the richness and fullness of life which faith makes possible. The personal life of the individual believer is impoverished by the loss of any one of the qualities mentioned in these Beatitudes. For this reason, they must be read and pondered in order that Christian experience may be reviewed and considered in the light of them. Deterioration of life is inevitable unless a proper amount of watchful care be exercised. Such deterioration always incurs a personal and serious loss.

The loss is universal, for others are blessed in proportion as the Christian maintains in full measure the qualities presented in these Beatitudes. The operation of salt for good depends upon its saltiness. The power of the Christian life for good depends upon its Christ-likeness, that peculiar quality without which it fails in its God-given mission and purpose.

In a very real sense the loss is also permanent. Deterioration and decay may be arrested; the backslider may be restored; but the loss incurred, both to oneself and others, during the period of drifting and carelessness, is permanent. In the day of reckoning such a one will suffer loss—not the loss of eternal life, which is God's free gift—but the loss of the reward that is offered to faithfulness.

Reality in God.

No one can awaken in the multitude a living sense of the near reality of God unless he has enjoyed direct spiritual vision himself. Few things evoke a more infallible response than the authentic note of personal religious experience; its presence and its absence are equally easy to detect.—A. G. Hogg.

A TIGHT SITUATION FOR THE "TIGHT LITTLE ISLE"

CHAPTER IV

Framed.

He saw her start, and then bend hastily over the money she was reckoning. But the flush that overspread her face showed her confusion, and when, compelled by Winton's presence, she raised her head, her mortification was too evident for Winton's feelings.

Suddenly he understood the meaning of her self-depreciatory words in the coach. A glance at the smiling waitresses, who were plainly of a class that had drifted to the fields for adventure and predatory purposes showed him the humiliation of the girl's position. He remembered what she had told him about two kinds of women; and in a flash he understood more than he could have learned in the course of a detailed explanation.

He saw the invisible class barrier that recognized two and only two conditions. On one side you were of the chosen; on the other, you shared the circumstances of the most vile. There were no subtle nuances of station here, nothing by which a decent woman was recognized as such, unless she came to Malopo in the care of some man of independent means.

And a flood of pity surged over the young man. He strode impulsively toward the desk.

"Miss Seaton!" he exclaimed. "I— She shook her head in vexation. "You must go away, Mr. Garrett," she said.

"I want to see you, to speak with you."

"I dare not. Please go away!" Her distress was so evident that Winton could do nothing but obey. "At least let me meet you afterward," he pleaded. "Let me walk home with you. I shall wait for you on the stoep."

"If only you'll go away now—" begged Sheila.

Winton went to a table. As he sat down he was conscious of the glance of the hotel proprietor, who stood near the entrance. The fellow was watching Winton and appraising him. Winton saw the waitresses glancing at him and smiling. And then he understood still more than before.

The flashy women in the Continental dining room were there much less for their ability to wait than to draw customers. And Sheila, in the cashier's seat, was the particular magnet of the place. And Winton might be a "find." The proprietor was sizing him up as a potential captive of his cashier. He was estimating him in terms of pounds and shillings brought to the bar of the Continental. The waitresses, always alert for new victims with money, were watching him, too.

Winton understood Sheila's shame to the full. It was his now, and it overwhelmed him. He must get the girl away from that place. Not for an instant did it occur to him to doubt her. He saw the desperation that had driven her to her employment, tied to a drunken, good-for-nothing father, in a land where women were of two kinds alone, the parasites and the home-makers.

Diamonds of Malopo

He did not raise his eyes to the desk again, but ate his meal hurriedly, ignoring the friendly approaches of his waitress, and went out upon the stoep. He sat down, looking across the market square. The sun had set, and darkness was coming on with the swiftness of those low latitudes. He began planning busily for Sheila and her father.

He must discover what hold De Witt had over Daddy Seaton. If he could break that bond and restore the old man's self-respect the beginning would have been made.

"Well, it's a fine evening, ain't it," said a voice beside him.

Winton swung round, to see the little man whom he had noticed before supper standing against the wall of the hotel. He started. How long the man had been there he could not imagine, but he felt almost as if his thoughts had been laid bare.

The man dropped into the chair beside him. "And what do you think of this country?" he continued, fixing Winton with his black eyes. "Stranger, ain't you? I spotted you as soon as you came in this afternoon."

"Yes, I'm a stranger," answered Winton curtly.

"There ain't many Americans in this country yet, but they won't be long coming. You always find 'em where the money is," said the little man. "Interested in a claim?"

"I might be," answered Winton. "As a rule I keep my affairs to myself."

"Oh, no offense," said the little man hastily. "We're all here for the money, ain't we? Of course, you're dead right to take that stand. You don't know me and I don't know you. Town's full of rogues and I. D. B. men, anyway. That was a smart trick getting away with the De Witt stone, eh? But the police will prove too smart for those fellows—if it ain't a lie."

Winton said nothing. He disliked the little man intensely. He felt an atmosphere of stealth and moral uncleanness exuding from him, and the little man was getting on Winton's nerves by the way he fidgeted, first with one arm and then with the other; then with one leg and then with the other.

"This I. D. B. game now—you've heard of it, I suppose, even though you are a stranger? Illicit diamond buying—it's as old as the first diamond claim pegged out in Kimberley. Only years on the breakwater at Cape Town to buy diamonds that way, and most of the big men in this country started in that game. Perfectly respectable now, and they ought to have the convict brand stamped all over them. But it's a temptation, when a Kaffir laborer knows more ways of hiding a stone than any white man could think of. Takes a shrewd compound manager to keep tabs on them. They used to swallow them, but we countered that. Then they'd cut holes in their skin and bury them, till we started the medical examination as well as the daily search. Then they hid them in their dogs, and we shut the dogs out of the compounds. There was one fellow, a dentist, used to stop their teeth with them, and that game wasn't worked out before they had a new trick.

"Yes, Malopo's a queer place," he continued. "Between you and me, I don't believe that De Witt stone was picked up here at all. De Witt brought it up from Kimberley and planted it on the Big Malopo claim. That's what most people are saying. Just an advertising trick to boom his stock, and the same with the stealing. That stone wasn't stolen."

"See here!" cried Winton, goaded to exasperation. "What in the name of thunder do you mean by calling the Big Malopo Mr. De Witt's? What has Mr. De Witt to do with it?"

The little man laughed and nudged Winton jovially in the side. The touch of his fingers against Winton's coat was almost intolerable. Winton moved his chair away.

"Now it's you who are asking questions," said the little man. "You know what you know and I know what I know, eh?"

He chuckled, rose up, and walked away. Whatever the object of his address might have been, it had succeeded in stinging Winton in his tenderest place. Everybody in Malopo seemed to take it for granted that De Witt already owned the Big Malopo. Even Ned Burns had taken the stone to De Witt. And it had been placed on exhibition in the Syndicate bank.

Winton was raging. He meant to show Malopo who owned the claim, and he had forgotten all his warnings about being cautious.

A mob of men from the dining room came out upon the stoep, laughing and joking. Inside the hotel Winton heard two in altercation, the subject of their dispute being, apparently, one of the waitresses. The meal was over. Winton rose and looked through the doorway. Then he saw Sheila putting on her hat beside the cashier's desk.

A man spoke to her as she left the room, but she walked past him, and went down the steps before Winton could intercept her. He followed her, and as he did so he heard one of the men on the stoep make a jesting remark about him to a companion.

Winton did not heed it. He caught up with the girl at the corner of the block. "Miss Seaton!" he began. She turned and stopped. "Mr. Garrett," she began.

Thousands of old people will tell you they have been drinking it for years, and after the liver and bowels have been put in fine condition in a few days by a before bedtime cup, that only an occasional cup is afterwards necessary to keep one feeling fit and fine.

People who drink a cup of Dr. Carter's K. and B. Tea once in a while, seldom, if ever, have any bilious attacks, sick headache or sallow skin. It's good for boys and girls, especially those who are peevish and fretful. Druggists have been selling it for many years.—adv.

OF THE SAME CRAFT

Devoted friends of Warren Gamaliel Harding will raise $3,000,000 by subscription to perpetuate the memory of the recent President. Half of that sum will be spent on a mausoleum and shrine at Marion, Ohio, where his body rests. The other half will be invested to keep these buildings up forever.

This is not the sort of thing that demands an appeal for funds and none is made. The fund will be raised by contributions from people who admired this big-hearted American and, in the giving, political lines will be completely obliterated.

There will be some Adams county people who will gladly chip in and those who wish to do so may send their subscriptions to the Gettysburg bank designated as a depository for the fund.

THE WRANGLE IN PROGRESS

As predicted, Congress is in the midst of a merry wrangle over organization. News dispatches of the events of the opening session Monday, available as this is being written, hold out little hope of an early agreement unless some radical concessions were in the making in Washington over Monday night.

There is a good-sized group of radicals in the United States senate and another in the lower house. They are by no means united, in either house, on all questions. But each group is resolved on one thing. The thing on which the house radicals are united is in the revolt against Speaker Gillette, who is too conservative for them; they are trying to organize the house, with one of their own number as speaker. A radical speaker would appoint radical committee chairmen whenever possible. President Coolidge can not deliver his message until each of the two branches of congress is organized for business. The fight in the house may not be settled in time for the president to appear before congress Wednesday, as scheduled.

In the senate the one thing which the radical members seem to be united on is government ownership of railroads. They will try to upset the Cummins railroad plan. That plan provides chiefly for experimental consolidation of stronger with weaker lines for a period of two years. The railroads are divided among themselves regarding this scheme of relief. The radicals in the senate are taking advantage of this division. They claim that the railroads are basing their rates of service on 12 billions of watered stock. These senators—the LaFollettes and Brookharts and Shipsteads—have been told that President Coolidge will probably oppose the government ownership scheme, but they say that makes no difference. It would make a difference. Even if the radicals should win a majority for their plan, it is doubtful if they could muster enough votes to pass it over the president's veto.

The radical senators will be very noisy this winter, and the newspapers will give them many big headlines. That is the circus way. The people like to be amused; some of these radicals are public curiosities. It is true that some of their stunts are dangerous—not for themselves but for the country, but that just adds to the thrill of watching their antics.

Goat will eat tin cans, dynamite, bride's biscuits or what have you. Then eat a shot for dessert.

Why not take this Illinois goat who eats dynamite and let him butt a nice fat bootlegger?

THE HUMAN STAGE COACH

Twenty times a day we go
Round about the room just so,
Stopping here to watch the clock,
Pausing here a chair to rock,
Standing here to see the light
On and off, now dark, now bright,
Here to watch the sunbeams creep
On a painted flock of sheep.

Here's a merry round to make,
Here's a wonder-land to take!
Same old glorious sights to view,
Never changed, but always new,
Starting at the clock we go
To the joys she's learned to know;
She's the driver, I'm the stage.

Bound for the canary cage.
Nothing must be missed at all,
On the shelf or on the wall,
This old battered coach must make
Every stop for pleasure's sake,
"Oo!" she cries, and that's a hint
Something she would finger-print,
Wherever we have been
There her thumb marks may be seen.

Which is happier, driver—stage,
Babyhood or gray-haired age?
Well, her smiles are fair to see,
But the coach I'm proud to be,
Glad that I can make the trip
Out and back without a slip,
Proud to be her daily stage
Bound for the canary cage.

Kellogg's Bran is nature's relief from the terrors of constipation!

Never make light of constipation or any one of its symptoms—there is no telling what disease you may be leading into! The one thing to do—IMMEDIATELY—is to fight constipation to the last ditch! Not with pills or cathartics; they cannot give you lasting relief! Not with foods with a low bran content; they do not have the bran-bulk to do the work!

What you need, what will give you permanent relief is Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL BRAN! Kellogg's is scientifically prepared to relieve constipation. It will relieve the chronic case or the mild case. You need it, your family needs it! But, you must eat Kellogg's Bran regularly—each day! At least two tablespoonsful; in chronic cases this amount with each meal! And, eating Kellogg's Bran is a delight rather than a hardship. It has a delicious, appealing nut-like flavor that wins the most fastidious appetite.

Every day when you eat Kellogg's Bran as a cereal, sprinkled on your favorite hot or cold cereal or cooked or mixed with hot cereals, think of the health every spoonful contains for you! Think how Kellogg's Bran is sweeping and cleansing the alimentary tract; how it is driving out the toxic poisons and freeing your system from dangers of dreaded diseases! Your physician will recommend it!

Kellogg's Bran is extra-delicious made into countless bakery batches. Recipes on every package. All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran; it is also obtainable at first-class hotels and clubs in individual packages. Ask for it at your restaurant.

REMEDY FOR PILES

Go to Stallanath's Drug Store today, hand him 30c. and say "I want a jar of San Cura Ointment" and if you aren't satisfied—your money back.

"For twenty years I suffered with bleeding and itching piles; at times I was confined to the house for more than a month. Two years ago I began using San Cura Ointment and one 60c. jar made a firm and permanent cure. I have not been troubled since."—Rev. W. F. Gilbert, Titusville, Pa.

It draws out poison; that's the secret of the wonderful success of San Cura Ointment; that's why it so quickly heals scalds, burns, cuts, bruises and eczema. It's best to use San Cura Soap at all times; it is a great aid in banishing pimples, blackheads and the germs of disease. 25 cents. All druggists.—adv.

'KIDNAPPED' GIRL
IS FOUND HAPPY

Willing Prisoner Aids Captors at Highfield Butchering When Officers Arrive.

TWO MEN ARE ARRESTED

One Says Child Claimed Ill-Treatment at Home; Father Declares Daughter is Incurrable.

Unusual developments are expected tonight when J. Reno Poole, aged 35, and Charles Davis, aged 42, of Highfield, are arraigned before Justice Bigler, Hagerstown, charged with kidnapping Beulah Souders, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Souders, of Mount Lena.

When arrested at his Highfield home, where the girl was found, Poole told the authorities that he had taken the girl away from her home upon her own request, after she had told him of how her father had mistreated her.

Girl Contented

The girl also told the officers that she did not want to return home, but that she wants to go wherever Poole goes.

Officers organized a posse when the girl's father reported that she had been kidnapped by two men who had come to his home Sunday presumably to purchase potatoes. One man he knew and he swore out a warrant for Poole. Davis was later identified as Poole's companion.

The girl was on her way to Sunday school, according to the story the father said his three young sons told him upon their return, when she was invented to ride to Sunday school by the men.

New Sheriff Acts

As soon as Richard Duffey was sworn in as the new Sheriff of Washington county he and his deputies left for Highfield, where he learned Poole could be found. Poole and Davis, aided by the girl, were busy butchering hogs when the officers arrived.

The Souders girl immediately protested being separated from Poole, but was taken to Hagerstown and turned over to her father, who took her home. The girl met Poole, it was learned, while at the home of an aunt at Highfield last winter. The girl's parents claim she is incurrable and are said to have found letters she had received from Poole.

Goats will eat dynamite. Why not start feeding the stuff to people who are always butting in?

Gifts for All

A Christmas Gift They Will Think of Every Day in The Year

Why not be practical and give your friends a Christmas present this year that will come as a pleasant reminder of the donor every week-day of the year.

Give them something that is educational and entertaining.

GIVE THEM A YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION TO THE GETTYSBURG TIMES.

If the one you want to give something practical that you know will be appreciated is already a regular reader and subscriber to this newspaper, bring or send to The Gettysburg Times office the amount of a full year's subscription and it will be dated ahead from the time the subscription already paid expires. Then, on Christmas Day, inform the one you have so thoughtfully remembered what you have done. And watch the expression of appreciation.

IT IS A PRATICAL GIFT FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY ALL IN ONE.

And the cost is less than two cents a day for the whole year. One of those who have already adopted this suggestion told us that the little poem by Eddie Guest, which appears on the editorial page of The Gettysburg Times every day, is in itself sufficient to justify sending this newspaper to a friend for a year as a Christmas Gift. That is just one of the many features of The Times in addition to the news of Adams county every day when it is news.

If you can't come to the office, send your check or a money order and the name of the person you want to get credit for it and we will do the rest.

SEIZED LIQUOR POURED IN DRAIN KILLS 32 RATS

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 4.—Thirty-two dead rats were found Monday in the rear yard of the United States Engineering Building, at Sixth and King streets, close by the drain through which federal officers last week dumped 200 gallons of alleged whisky and 700 bottles of beer.

It is the assumption of the federal officers that the rats were killed by drinking the poisoned liquor.

HE COUGHED FOR TWO YEARS SWORE OFF

After coughing for two years almost continuously a man of considerable means got thin and tired and worn out, made his will, and was ready to quit the big game of life.

A friend spoke to him about Broncholine Emulsion and now life to him is very sweet indeed.

That's the kind of a cough that is out of business with amazing speed when the cougher is wise to Broncholine Emulsion.

Tough old coughs—persistent coughs—coughs that hang on and rob people of their sleep—those are the kind of coughs Broncholine likes to tackle.

Many times such coughs linger after the Grip or a heavy cold, and if you have one or know of anyone who has not kept Broncholine Emulsion in mind.

It isn't just a cheap sweet cough syrup—it's the best cough remedy—and the best is never cheap. People's Drug Store can supply you.—adv.

Why the Sober Man Did Smile

By MARTHA B. THOMAS

Boarding House Christmas Party Had a Very Happy Ending for Two

What He Asked and Her Answer Should Be an Easy Guess

It WAS Christmas Eve at Mrs. Cummings' boarding house. In the interval between two string beans, Miss Billings observed to the rest of the diners that it was nice to have friends at this season. No one denied it. Of the seven places at the table one was vacant, that belonging to Vesta Blaine.

"Miss Blaine," continued Miss Cummings a little wistfully, "always has such a delightful time at holidays. She has so many pleasant acquaintances. And of course," she hesitated to give emphasis to what was coming, "she is getting a good deal of attention from that young man."

No one had any comments to make. But a serious-faced man at the other end of the table seemed to be very grave indeed; he bent a concentrated regard upon his plate, as though the contents might yield some secret which he hunted.

"A real Christmas Eve!" chanted Vesta Blaine. Her eyes were like stars; her cheeks bright with color; she looked like a flower set down in a vegetable garden. The other boarders were a bit older, a bit more tired, a bit disillusioned; they drank their sunshine from the exuberant girl, and wondered how she could come at night still bubbling with high spirits and fun.

"It's snowing!" continued Vesta, darting a smile at the sober man, who apparently was not aware of his good fortune, for he never looked up. "That soft sift of feathers that comes down like . . . like"—she hunted for an adequate simile—"like prayers of the angels! Only prayers are supposed to go up, aren't they?" she laughed at her own conceit. "The trees are like dreams behind white veils, and the street lamps are orange moons! I love it. Do pass me the butter, somebody. I'm hungry enough to eat shredded hairpins!"

Everybody did their best to make Vesta comfortable, even the scrap of a maid who waited on the table. Miss Blaine offered her pepper and salt twice, and the landlady asked if she preferred her roast beef well or medium done.

"I'm going to a party tonight!" announced Vesta after a few mouthfuls to fortify her wants, "the very best party ever perpetrated."

Miss Billings smiled her interest and asked where.

"Oh, not very far from here; and"—she paused, looking around the table with a curious glance—"you're all invited! That's why it's the best party—because it's got the nicest folks coming to it!"

Vesta Blaine Went to the Front Door, Opened It.

What a hubbub there was then! Everybody asked five questions at once and none found out the answer. Miss Billings quivered with excitement. Mrs. Cummings waved the carving knife and nearly took off a slice from the sober man's nose. Finally, Vesta stood up, commanded silence, tapped importantly on the table with a silver spoon, and began:

"Ladies and gentlemen, you are earnestly requested, cordially invited and definitely ordered to clothe yourself in radiant raiment after dinner, and then wait for me in the hall. No one shall be allowed to say 'no.' Penalty for disobedience is so horrible I can't even mention it!"

And ready they were as soon as they could jump into their best and assemble in the hall. The sober man was the last to appear. He looked as though he did not dare stay away. That's the best that could be said about him. But the rest were laughing and talking in happy expectation.

Vesta Blaine went to the front door, opened it, made strange signs with her hands, and in there tramped a big, blustering giant of a fellow dressed like Santa Claus. He had a nobby pack on his back, and appeared to have every intention of unloading it at Mrs. Cummings' boarding house.

"This way," said Vesta and led him into the parlor. The rest followed.

"For mercy's sake!" exclaimed Miss Billings.
